

Dolphins

To those who wear the Dolphins!

There was God and all else was darkness and void and without form. So God created the heavens and the earth, He created the sun and the moon and the stars, so their light might pierce the darkness.

And the earth, God divided between the land and the sea, and these he filled with many assorted creatures.

And from the slime, in a land called Lymphstone, God made dark, salty creatures that inhabited the seashore. He called them Marines. He dressed them accordingly, in bright colors so that their betters may more easily find them in the holes and burrows that they'd scoured out of the ground. And God said, "Whilst at their appointed labors they will devour worms, maggots, C and K rations and all creatures that creep and crawl."

The flighty creatures of the air, He called Airdales, and these He clothed in uniforms, which were ruffled, perfumed, and pretty. He gave them great floating cities with roofs in which to live, where they gathered and formed huge multitudes. They carried out heathen rites and ceremonies by day and by night upon the roof amidst thunderous noise. They were given God's blue sky and their existence was on the backs of others.

And the surface creatures of the sea, God called skimmers, who supported the Airdales and with a twinkle in His eye and a sense of humor only He could have. He gave them all gedunks, polluted with much stickey water, to drink. God gave them big grey "targets" to go to sea in. He gave them many splendid uniforms to wear. And He gave them all the world's exotic and wonderful places to visit. He gave them pen and paper so that they could write home every week, and He gave them ropeyarn Sunday at sea and a laundry so they could clean and polish their splendid uniforms. (When you are God it is very easy to get carried away with your own great and wondrous benevolence.

And on the seventh day, as you know, God rested from his labors. And on the eighth day at 0755, just before colors, God looked down upon the earth and He was not a happy man. God knew He had not quite achieved perfection, so he thought about his labors, and in His infinite wisdom, He created a devine creature.

His masterpiece, and this He called a Submariner. A child of heaven. And these Submariners, whom God created in His own image, and to whom He gave his most cherished gift, great intelligence, were to be of the deep, and to them He gave more of His greatest gifts. He gave them black steel messengers of death called the “Smoke Boat” class in which to roam the depths of his oceans, and He gave them arrows and slingshots, the Mark 14 torpedo of burnished brass and black, and the Mark 37 of green, to wage war against the forces of Satan and all evil.

He heaped great knowledge and understanding upon them, in order that they may more easily win their greatest challenge, to pass their Qualification Test and be skilled in the great works God had charge them with.

The finest of these men, God called “Diesel Boat Submariners” for they made all happen beyond the understanding of other men. God gave his Submariners hotels in which to live when they were exhausted and weary from doing God’s will. He gave them fortitude to consume vast quantities of beer and booze, to sustain them in their arduous tasks, performed in His name.

He gave them great food, submarine pay and occasionally, subsistence so that they might entertain the ladies of the “Starlight”, “White Hat”, and the “Horse and Cow” on Saturday nights and impress the heck out of the creatures He called “Skimmers” and “Jar Heads”.

And at the end of the eighth day, God again looked down upon the earth and saw all was good in His realm.

But God was not happy because, in the course of His mighty labors He had forgotten on thing. Hre had not kept a pair of “Dolphins” for Himself. But He thought about it and considered it and finally He consoled himself, in the certain knowledge that-----

“Not Just Anybody Can Be a Submariner”

Author Unknown